The cookie cutter is made of tin plate. It is a traditional material which has been used in every household for many decades. The surface is rustprotected, but not stainless and therefore not dishwasher-proof. We advise to wash up the cutter and dry it well straight after use. Granny's tip for drying it perfectly: After washing up, place the tin plate cutters onto the heater for one night, or put them into the oven, which is still warm, until it has cooled down.
